Meet the Author

I'm Karen! I work full-time as a Speech-Language Pathologist in a school setting. I also have experience in pediatric outpatient settings ("Pedi" is short for "Pediatrics")! I create resources for Teachers Pay Teachers because I love writing! I especially love creating following directions packets and main idea packets. I also have a huge passion for correcting lisps and vocalic /r/ errors.

I was born and raised in Ohio, but went to grad school in Texas! I live with my husband, son, and dog named Moo in Ohio.

I enjoy drinking iced coffee, even in the winter- and I'm a big fan of (almost) all things nerdy.

Information

This is an engaging “get to know you” activity for back to school!

This resource can be used in traditional therapy sessions or during teletherapy!

How to play: flip a coin. Your student will answer a question from the either the “heads” or “tails” column, depending on which way the coin lands.

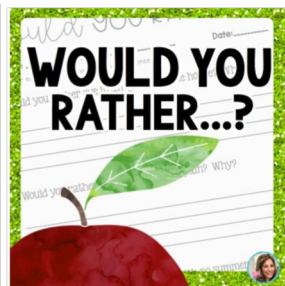

This resource provides a way to get your students talking! They do not need to write their answers on the paper– they can just tell you their answers. This is meant to be a conversational activity.

To use during a teletherapy session, simply share your screen and google “flip a coin”. There are many available websites that offer simple virtual coin flips (such as justflipacoin.com). Please note, I am not affiliated with these websites.

To use in person, flip a real coin (or use a website). Your student can daub or cover circles with mini erasers, magnetic chips, etc., as questions are answered.

Leveled support and low ink options are provided.

More Back to School fun:
